Boiler Explosion and Loss of Life.

SAVANNAH, GA., April 27—The Boiler of Torrents shingle mill on the canal in the western part of the city, exploded at noon to-day, killing Louis M. Torrents, supreintendant and Geo. Hughes, engineerer. Eight other persons who were in the mill at the time of the explosion escaped but all are more or less injured. The building took fire and was totally consumed.

Revenue Storekeepers and Gaugers Appointed.

WASHINGTON, April 27—W. C. Douglass, A. M. Garwood, J. O. Hoit, W. G. Bowman, D. L. Williams and A. C. Monday have been appointed storekeepers and gaugers for the 6th North Carolina district.

NEW YORK, April 27—A Frankfort (Ky.) dispatch says in the house of representatives yesterday an ex member of Congress, John D. White, who is your representative from Clay county, charged Speaker Bigger with ruling on the side of dilatory legislation. The Speaker said White uttered a falsehood. White retorted: "I throw that back in your teeth," Later the Speaker apologized to the House, but said he had no apology to make to White. After adjournment they met in the State House grounds and had a rough and tumble fight. White got in the most effective blows. Warrants were issued for the arrest of both.

THE ADVERTISEMENT.

Some Sagacious Remarks Telling What Not to Do in These Matters.

If you have goods to sell, advertise.

Hire a man with a lampblack kettle and a brush to paint your name and number on all the railroad fences. The car goes whizzing by so fast that no one can read them, to be sure, but perhaps the obliging conductor would stop the train to accommodate an inquisitive passenger.

Rememembering the fences by the roadside as well. Nothing is s attractive to the passer-by as a well-painted sign: "Millington's Medical mixture for Mumps."

Have your card in the hotel register by all means. Strangers stopping at hotels for a night generally buy a cigar or two, before leaving town, and they need some inspiring literary food besides.

If an advertiseing agent wants your business advertised in a fancy frame at the depot, pay him about two hundred per cent more than it is worth, and let him put it there. When a man has three-quarters of a second in which to catch a train, he invariably stops to read depot advertisements, and your card might take his eye.

Of course the street thermometer dodge is excellent. When a man's fingers and ears are "phewing" at the heat, is the time above all others when he reads an advertisement.

Print in the blackest ink a great sprawling card on all your wrapping paper. Ladies returning from a shopping tour like to be walking bulletins, and if the ink rubs off and spoils some of her finery, no matter. They will never at p at your store again.

Don't fail to advertise in every circus programme. It will help the circus to pay its bills, and visitors can relieve the tedium of the clown's jokes by looking over your interesting remarks about "twenty per cent below."

When the breezes blow, wafted by a paper fan in the hands of lovely women, 'tis well to have the air redolent with perfume of the carmine ink in which your business address is printed. This will make the market for decentfans very good.

Patronize every agent that shows you an advertising tablet, card, directory, dictionary or even an advertising Bible, if one is offered at a reasonable price. The man must make a living.

But don't think of advertising in a well-established, legitimate newspaper. Not for a moment. Your advertisement would be nicely printed and would find its way into all the thrifty households of the region where the farmer, the mechanic, the tradesmen in other lines, and into the families of the wealthy and refined, all who have articles to buy and money with which to buy them, and after the news of the day has been digested, it would be read and pondered, and next day people would come down to your store and patronize you, and keep coming in increasing numbers, and you might have to hire an extra clerk or two, move into a larger block and more favorable location and do a bigger business, but of course it would be more expensive—and bring greater profits.—New Haven Register.

Petroleum in Russia.

It is likely that the European demand for petroleum will before long be largely supplied by the deposits of this oil in Hanover and Russia. The beds in the latter country are comparatively boundless, extending for a distance of 1,500 miles along the Caucasus range, from the Caspian to the Black Sea. At the present time, however, there are but two districts in this large area where any systematic efforts are being made to obtain the petroleum. One is in the valley of the Kuban river (which flows into the Black Sea), where two wells have been sunk by a French company under the superintendence of an American manager; this company has a refinery at Tamar. The other and most productive district is near Baku, on the Caspian Sea. Many wells have been sunk here to the depth of 300 feet, having a daily yield of 28,000 barrels of crude petroleum. An extraordinary amount of sand flows out with the oil, and is heaped up near the orifice of the wells in banks at least thirty feet high. Large refineries exist at Baku, though the refined oil at present produced there is not so good as that in this country.

A Warning to Belles.

Baltimore American.

A young lady, of Baltimore's society belles, living on Dolphin street, near Bolton, made a painful and terrible mistake on Thursday night. She was about retiring to rest, and had turned out the gas. She had been using glycerine for chapped lips, and recollecting that she had neglected to use it, she went to the wall-bracket, where she kept it, and took down what she thought in the dark was the glycerine bottle. It seems, however, there was a bottle of about the same size on the shelf containing nitric acid, which her mother had been using for some purpose, and it was this the unfortunate young lady got hold of. She did not discover her mistake until she had applied the dangerous fluid to her lips with a piece of flannel, and even then, for a few moments, she attributed the burning sensation to the effect of glycerine upon her chapped lips. In a very short time, however, the intense pain taught her that she had made some mistake, and she commenced to to shriek loudly for assistence. Her mother running in, realized what was the matter, and with wonderful presence of mind she snatched up a large sponge filled it with water, and deluging the young lady's mouth and face with it, stayed the progress of the acid. Medical aid was then summoned and everything possible done to alleviate her sufferings. The sad probability is that her mouth will be disfigured.

Taxation in Paris.

The City of Paris is one of the few non-American municipalities that has an unbounded faith in the blessings of a large debt and a high rate of taxation. The population, by the census taken this year, falls a little short of two million souls, indicating that the city has increased in size about 360 per cent since the year 1800. The expenditures, however, have not followed this slow rate of progress, for they are thirty times larger now than they were at the beginning of the century. The ordinary budget for this year amounts to $42,000,000, but of this amount $27,000,000 will be raised by octroi duties, that is, taxes upon produce of all kinds that is brought into the city for consumption. The municipal debt amounts to about $400,000,000, and the interest upon this forms a large item in the annual estimates. Although the financial condition of Paris is looked upon as deplorable by most Europeans it is by no means as bad as that of some of our leading American cities. According to the Boston Herald the ratio of annual expenditure per head is about the same as it is in that city, and though the volume of debt is somewhat disproportionate, yet when it is taken into account that in real and personal wealth the Parisians have probably twenty times the amount that Bostonians possess, it will be seen that they are in a position to meet their indebtedness with much greater ease than the people of the Hub can hope for, Were not comparisons inclined to be "odious" we might bring them nearer home on this subject, but we forbear.

DIMPLE CULTURE.

A Cosmetic Industry Which is Destined to be a Great Success.

N. Y World.

A hadsome woman, elegantly dressed, entered a Broadway car in which a reporter was riding, and immediately but unconsciously directed the attention of a dimple little man who sat next the reporter, and who had been staring out of countenance all the other ladies in the car. The little man, who looked like something between a hair-dresser and a middle-aged beau, drew a notebook from his pocket, and after making a slight sketch of the face of the lady who had just entered the car, said to the reporter: "Fine woman, that."

The reporter could not but agree with him.

"What do you think is her special charm?" asked the little man.

The reporter thought it might be a sort of "I don't know whatness," a combination of chic and dignity, her graceful bearing, or her good clothes.

"I was speaking of her face purely and simply," interrupted the little man. "Do you notice how completely her face is in repose?"

The reporter replied that he thought the lady looked as if she didn't take much interest in any of the other women in the car.

"Now, I will make her smile," continued the dapper man, and rising, he turned his back to the occupants of the car and blew his nose violently. This grotesque exhibition of politeness caused the "fine woman" to smile. The dimples chased each other over her cheeks and then slowly disappeared. The little man resumed his seat in time to catch a glimpse of the fleeting dimples. "What do you think now?" he asked,

The reporter thought that the lady was very pretty when she smiled, and that her face was as dimpled as that of a baby or a Watteau shepherdess.

"Those dimples are her particular charm," said the little man. "She is handsome without them, beautiful with them. In five years from to-day, perhaps before that, when my method becomes known, New York City will be filled with women who having been plain become pretty, having been pretty become handsome, having been handsome become beautiful."

"Oh, then, you are a sort of a"—began the reporter. The little man handed him a card. It bore simply the words, "Prof. A. Verroni, No. 12 Dafodil Place." That is my name and address," said he. "By profession I am a surgeon, graduate of the School of Medicine, Paris. I am a specialist, however, like many of the eminent—I would say like many physicians and surgeons of the present time, and my specialty is to place dimpleas in the faces of these to whom nature has denied this charm. Now some women can get up a six-inch smile without doing anything further than put their mouths in a parenthesis, and others laugh as if they had dimples in their upper gums; but those delicate, expressive little hollows that you see in the cheeks are called up by the slightest movement of the lips of those who possess them and speak volumes—whole libraries."

The reporter suggested that he already knew all about the poetical aspect of dimples; and he would be obliged to the Professor if he would tell him what a dimple was.

"Well, sir," said Prof. Verroni, "a dimple—a natural dimple that is—is simply a slight hollow between two muscles or over a muscle, and the skin is more firmly attached to the subjacent tissues at this point than at other points. Hence when the muscles contract as in the act of smiling, the skin is drawn down into the hollow, forming a dimple, that beautiful"——

"Yes," said the reporter, "but how do you make them?"

"I make a puncture of skin at the point where the dimple is required," answered the professor, "a puncture that cannot be noticed when it has healed, and with a very delicate instrument I remove a small portion of the muscle. Then excite a slight inflammation, which attaches the skin to the subcutaneous hollow I have formed. In a few days the wound—if wound it can be called—has healed, and a charming dimple is the result."

The reporter suggested that there ought to be a good deal of money in the new operation.

"There is," said the professor. "Women will be made lovely and I will be made rich."

"How many times have you performed this operation?" asked the reporter.

"Many times in France," answered the Professor; "never yet in America. To-morrow I begin operating on several actresses who wish dimples on their faces, shoulders, arms and—yes shoulders and arms."

"You speak English very well for a Frenchman, Professor," said the reporter.

"Maybe you think I ain't a Frenchman," said the Professor savagely.

"Oh, not at all," said the reporter in a noncommittal way; "here's my street, Professor. Good day."

A BABY SOT.

REMARKABLE CAREER OF GEO. LEE, OF PATTERSON.

History of a Prodigy—Consigned to the State Reformatory Until He Shall be of Age.

New York Herald.

There arrived at the New Jersey State Reform School at Jamesburg on Thursday a human being, a child in size, with the intellect of a man and the vices of a degraded inebriate. Fully thirteen years of age, most persons would hardly suppose his years to exceed five. His replies to questions asked, always intelligent, sometimes witty, generally insulting, show a wonderfully precocious mind perverted by evil associations. Morally a complete wreck, his history would make a fitting subject for Emil Zola's pen. The name of this peculiar being is George Lee and his birthpalce and home Patterson, N. J. When he first saw the light of day the unusual size of his head created some attention, but when in a few weeks the rest of his body assumed a size in proportion to his head no more was thought of the matter. His babyhood was like that of most children; he laughed when pleased and cried when crossed, and showed no signs of any unusual intellectual development. When he had attained the age of four years his head began to increase in size, and the women in the neighborhood in which he resided declared that "Georgie had water on the brain." Physicians were consulted and shook their heads, for the case was new to them. All with one accord declared that he would live but a very short time and satisfied themselves with that prediction, but despite it George lived on. His head continued to increase in size until a No. 7½ hat hat fitted it snugly, but the rest of his body did not seem to grow at all. With the increase in cranial development came increase of intelligence. He soon showed a wonderful talent of learning by heart anything reported to him, and his genius seemed to cover everything. With a quick perception he combined remarkable reasoning power, with energy and decision was mingled prudence, and his love for figures was only exceeded by his love for music and poetry. The hyperbola of mathematics seemed to possess as much charm for him as the hyperbole of rhethoric. That such unusual gifts, especially when combined in a body so abnormal, could escape attracting notice was impossible, and George soon had hosts of friends. They taught him to recite passages from Milton and Shakspeare, and to sing hymns and sentimental songs; they took him to the theatre, and on the following day George would reward them by rendering with marked talent some of the more attractive passages of the play in imitation of the actors and actresses he had seen the previous night; they would read to him from books and Georgie would quote the authors in his conversations with the gravity and correctness of a college professor. Soon Georgie became the wonder of the city; his fame spread beyond its limits, and among his visitors were such men as Governor Bedie and other prominent men, all of whom seemed to take an interest in the juvenile prodigy. An enigma to men of science, a source of amusement and wonderment to all, he was eagerly sought after, and his life seemed an unbroken chain of joys and amusements.

MOMENTS OF SADNESS.

Those who knew him best were, however, cognizant of the fact that he too had his moments of sadness, and that even to him the roses of life were not without thorns. At times his lustrous eyes would fill with tears, sad reflections drive away his joyous laugh, and no actor could touch the human heart with greater pity than Georgie when he viewed the future before him. "The doctors all tell me," he would say, "that I cannot live long; that my head is too large for my body, and that my frame cannot support the working of my brain. They all tell me that I must die soon and leave all my friends, and then where will poor Georgie go?" Hastily brushing away the tears his merry laugh would banish the sad reflections on his future destiny, which the facts had spun in an evil hour. His parents were in poor circumstances, and his father died before Georgie had begun to attract general attention. His mother was obliged to earn her bread by daily toil in one of the mills. Georgie had plenty of friends, so that his mother, when she left him in the morning, knew well that at her return home at evening she would find her darling safe and that he had wanied for nothing during the day. Despite their daily separation he was tenderly attached to her and referred to her only in words of tenderness.

HIS DOWNWARD CAREER

Left all day to wander where he chose it would have been remarkable, indeed, if among his many quasi friends there had not been some who sought to pervert his intellect to evilness. A slang phrase, a bit of vulgarity, a double entendre were laughed at by many and aeproved by few, and soon became the rule and not the exception with Georgia. Prompted by men of little character and schooled by persons who took a pride in teaching the child how to be wicked, soon became self wiled and incorrigible. The doors of respectability were closed against him, his downward career had begun and soon the enfant prodigne became a vegitable enfant terrible. With astonished alacrity he learned to smoke, chew, curse, swear, drink and soon his only companions were saloon loungers and the scum of society. During the past five years the nights on which he returned home sober were fewer than those on which he reached home intoxicated or did not come at all. All his energy seemed to be bent upon the acquirement of wicked knowledge, and his days were principally spent in saloons, dancing jigs and singing ribald songs. Milton and Shakespeare were forgotten and indecent songs had usurped the place of hymns. Instead of being courted and flattered everywhere, he was shunned, for every other word was on oath and obscenity and vulgarity constituted his conversation. Ladies who had formerly petted him now passed him by in a hurry for fear of being insulted. His life seemed to be one daunken debauch and his temper became ungovernable. He would stop a stranger or an acquaintance in the street and insolently demand a chew of tobacco; insulting ribalary was the reward if the favor was not granted; a volley of curses and oaths invariably followed a refusal. His fits of fury were simply terrible. Thwarted even in the sightest affair he would kick and yell and send send forth oaths that would have fitted the collection of the father of Tristram Shanky. The growth of his intelligence, like the growth of his body, seemed to have come to a standstill, and Georgie was far less interesting than he formerly was. Plenty of boys could be found with innumerable bad habits at the age of thirteen. The only other unusual point about Georgia was his size, and that in itself did not constitute enough of a wonder to be gazed at at the expense of being insulted. For the past few years Georgie had almost altogether withdrawn from the gaze of tee pnblic. Occasionally his diminutive form would be seen in the streets and awaken recollections of his former years, bnt as everybody seemed to avoid him he soon abandoned the highways.

PATIENCE AT LAST EXHAUSTED.

His mother, nearly heartbroken at the change in her darling endeavored to reform him; but necessity called her to the mill in the daytime and the few good admonitions which she could give in the few hours spared her with him were counteracted a hundredfold by the evil instructions received in the daytime. She did her best to stem the current of wickedness, but in vain. Finally she gave up the unequal struggle and applied to the strong arm of the law for mercy to himself and her child. He heard of it and cursed her for it. The edict of the court was issued, consigning him until his twenty-first year to the Reform School, and he soon fell into the hands of the law's minions and found himself behind the bars of the country jail, there to await transportation to his future home. A few days of reflection seemed to have a beneficial effect upon him, and when Sheriff Van Voorhies came to take him to Jamesburg a marked improvement in his demeanor was observable. Melancholy seemed again to have seized upon him. As he stood on the stone steps leading out of the jail he was a picture of a juvenile wreck—an unnatural picture. The dissipation which had no plainly marked his face did certainly not agree with his infantform, and who would look for melancholy in a mere babe?

HIS ADIEU TO PATERSON.

"Won't you take me around to see my mother?" he asked supplicatingly. "I would like to see her once before I go. I can hardly expect to come back alive." The favor was promised and he seemed satisfied.

A stranger, who had been informed of Georgie's destiny, but who did not know him, said;—"I thought that only children over twelve years of age were taken at the Reform School. This is a mere baby."

Oh, Weep for the Doomed.

I.

Oh, weep for the doomed! who, youthful in years,
Soul weariness know and sorrowful tears;
On the threshold of life who feel its decay—
Heart-withered, who pass uncomplaining away.

II.

Lament for the young, who, yet in their prime,
Have nothing to hope in the future of time;
Whose eyes on the past and on ruin are chained
'Till thought grows too darkly and dreadfully pained.

III

What anguish is there! In cold, creeping age
The impress is fainter on life's ending page;
But the blood-print of woe enstamped on their lot
Deep colors their being until they are not.

IV.

Their token is carried on features as pale
As the white lily's leaf that blows in the vale;
Their eye hath a brightness high hope cannot give,
With death at the core, how smiling they live!

V.

Oh, show me that smile—I know it full well;
What languishing woe does it silently tell!
Desolation is there, and a proud touch of scorn
For the sordid of earth to bright fortune born.

VI.

Perhaps they are gifted—full often they are,
And the temple of fame they see from afar,
As the mariner views the shore from the sea,
Yet knows that his grave in wild ocean must be.

VII.

I remember an eye dark glancing with fire,
And a pale face that leant entranced o'er the lyre,
And a smile whose sad meaning no words can portray—
But that crushed one has passed from the cold word away.

VIII.

She staid not to wither—a parentless flower,
When chill winds were whistling and leafless the bower;
In the land of the stranger, a late autumn rose—
She sleeps where her hopes, but no kindred, repose.

The Reliable Man.

The reliable man is a man of good judgement. He does not jump at conclusions. He is not a frivolous man. He is thoughtful. He turns over a subject in his mind and looks at it all around. He is not a partial or one-sided man. He sees through a thing. He is apt to be a very reticent man. He does not have to talk a great deal. He is a moderate man not only in habits of body, but also in mind. He is not a passionate man: if so by nature, he has overcome it. He is a sincere man, not a plotter or schemer. What he says may be relied on. He is a trustworthy man. You feel safe with your property or the administration of affairs in his hands. He is a brave man, for his conclusions are logically deduced from the sure basis of truth, and he does not fear to maintain them. He is a good man, for no one can be thoroughly honest and truthful without being good.

Nothing Left Out!

Good Advice.

Before buying a sewing machine be sure to always ask if it has a steel cam, and if the salesman says that it has, just ask him to take off the front plate and prove it. The New Home is th only machine that has a steel cam.

Theory vs. Facts.

All established theories are set aside by solid facts. The solid facts in this case are, that the business interests of our fair city have been more greatly enhanced within the past year by one single enterprise, conducted by one single mind, than by all other productive institutions in Rochester. We refer to the manufacture of Hop Bitters. The remedial properties of hops, with the herbs introduced, principally buchu, mandrake and dandelion, had long been known, but there had been so much meretstuff—aye, deleterious stuff—foisted upon the country, under the general cognomen of "bitters" and "remedies," that this medicine, which had been perfecting under the experiments of skilled pharmaceutists; and chemists, had to overcome the distrust of all such "remedies" by the slow process of information, which has been so successfully done that to-day the druggist who does not embrace Hop Bitters in the list of his regularly ordered medicines, or the family that does not know its beneficial effects would be difficult to find.

THE MANUFACTORY

is located on Mill street, from which emanates the preparation that is daily shipped to all parts of this country, and to sections of the globe over which the American flag does not float. The business is splendidly systematized, and everything goes on so quietly that it would be difficult to imagine that so extensive a business was done in that locality. Each department is overseen by competent persons. The items for bottles and for packing-boxes are enormously surprising, and those who furnish these two articles alone have reason to rejoice at the discovery of Hop Bitters, while the myriads of sick people who have been cured by this invaluable remedy have greater reason to rejoice.—Rochester Evening Press.

SUNDAY, Jan 25, 1880—10:45 P. M.

MR. SOULE—

Dear Sir—By some mistake, your note accompanying a dozen bottles of "Hop Bitters" and conveying also your kind offer to suppy to our large family, all of the medicine used there, was not given to me as it should have been done, to acknowledge. At the monthly meeting held last week, Mrs. Shipmon asked me if it had been answered. At once the matter was stated to us, and I was directed to thank you for your generosity. The old ladies who have taken the Bitters feel built up by it already. Indeed they almost are pursuaded that they have a new back-bone, so quickly have these old ones stiffened and straightened. To have given so much happiness or comfort to these aged women, whose lives at best, must be lonely, is a blessing which reacts most graciously upon ourselves. Such bread cast lovingly on life's waters, comes back at some time, and in some way. May your gifts always bring equal comfort with this and may your reward be sure.

Thanking you in behalf of the Board, officially, of the old ladies gratefully, and for my own sake, that I have been permitted to hear of improvement for once in lieu of increased suffering, I am

Yours truly,

WASHINGTON.

THE NORTH POLE EXPEDITION OF MORISON AND BROWN.

A Search to be made for Sir John Franklin's Records.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Eaton, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported without amendments the Naval Appropriation bill. Placed on the calendar.

Burnside, from the same committee, reported adversely on Senate bill to detail army officers to take command of the expedition fitted out by Morrison and Brown, of New York, to search for records of Sir John Franklin's expedition. Indefinitely postponed.

Morgan, of Kentucky, by request, introduced a bill directing the Court of Claims to investigate the claims of Benjamin Weil and Lazare mining companies. Referred.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, April 27th.—Mr. Cox, of New York, chairman of the committee on Foreign Affairs reported back resolution calling on the President for copies of all correspondence with the English Government relating to alleged interference with American fishermen in Fortune Bay on January 6th, 1878. Adopted.

Mr. Frye, of Maine, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported bill regulating the importation of raw material to be manufactured in the United States and used in the repair and construction of vessels employed in foreign trade, including trade between Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States or built for foreign accounts. Referred to Committee of the Whole.

The District of Columbia Appropriation bill was then passed. Torney, of Alabama, introduced a bill exempting the State of Alabama from provisions of the act to promote development of mining resources of the United States. Referred.

Whyte, from the Committee on Naval Affairs reported favorably on the bill for the relief of Commodore Donald McNeal, of Fairfax, Va. Placed on the calendar.

Burnside from the committee on Naval Affairs reported adversely on the House Joint resolution to furnish a bronze monument of General Daniel Morgan to the Compense Association of Spartansburg, S. C., and it was indefinitely post-doned.

Hampton, from the same committee, reported favorably a bill turning over to the Government of South Carolina four pieces of condemned cannon for the use of the Marion Artilery. Placed on the calendar.

Conkling presented a petition of a large number of business men of New York for an amendment of the statutes so that duties on imported sugar shall be assessed on the quantity delivered from, instead of entered in, bonded warehouses.

The House bill to authorize and equip a scientific expedition to the Artic Sea was taken up and passed at the expiration of the morning hour.

The Kellogg-Spofford resolution was temporarily laid aside, and the Indian Appropriation bill taken up. After some discussion it went over without action, and the Senate adjourned.

Jay Gould's Winnings.

The New York Public says that a year ago Jay Gould sold 10,000 shares of Union Pacific for about $8,500,000. Then he bought a controlling interest in Kansas Pacific, which was at 12, for about $600,000, and in the next six months the stock rose to 92 netting $4,000,000. Wabash was at 18 when Gould bought, men say, two-thirds of the stock, and it rose later to 62½. His profit on the consolidation of the St. Louis Northern (which he bought at 7½ and saw rise to 47, and Wabash are put at $4,850,000. In all, by spending about $5,850,000 for stocks, Gould has netted $11,000,000, if he were to sell out. Meanwhile he can borrow on his holdings two or three times the amount of his original capital. The question in Wall street now is how much Gould expects to make on his Central stock, of which he has at least 83,500 shares.

Lotta says she does not like the little Detective any better than the critics do; but as long as the people like it and come in crowds, she will continue playing it.

Chicago has been delighted with The Avenger, a five act drama, because all the actors were killed off by the avenger long before the curtain fell in the second act.

Edwin Booth's terms with Abbey are $700 a performance, and he draws his money at the close of each representation. This is immense pay—greater, in fact, than Forrest ever had.

Miss Lucy, one of the famous Davide family of acrobats, who fell from a trapeze in Philadelphia on Wednesday last, was not so much injured, as was reported, and will be able to resume her business this week or next.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons's piece for next season will be Queen and Cardinal, a new play, in which the principal characters are Anne Boleyn and Cardinal Wolsey. Walter Raleigh, said to be a lineal decendant of the man who made a street-crossing out of his cloak, is the author of the play.

While Boucicault is absent from this country he will produce his new piece, 'Faugh-a-Ballagh," at the London Adelphi, and will also place his English property, valued at about $100,000, beyond the reach of seizure. If the Irish piece is a success in London it will be done at New York, at Wallack's in November, with the author in the leading part.

The Troy Budget says: "Some years ago, when Fanny Davenport was at the zenith of her career at Daly's Theatre, New York, the man who is now her husband was playing the little utility parts in this city, and went through the winter without an overcoat." Very true, and it happens that he was under the person now playing low comedy in his wife's company at $22 a week.

According to the Spirit of the Times, Lester Wallack made overtures, first to Henry Irving and then to Sara Bernhard to play at his theatre next season; but on receiving replies that Irving's terms were $2000 a night, and Bernhardt's $1400 a night, with board, lodging and carriage for seven people, the enterprising manager returned to preparations for a stock company next season.

Mrs. Scott Siddons was reading to a fashionable audience at Columbia, S. C. In the midst of a selection from "King John," at the point where the Prince is sentenced to be blinded, she stopped abruptly, said it was impossible to proceed, and walked off the stage. The people thought she was overcome by emotion, aroused by the passage she was reading, and so they applauded her for the supposed display of womanly feeling. But they were mistaken. A party of young men in a box had annoyed her by conversation and inattention, and she returned to explain that unless they behaved better she would read no more. They were quiet thereafter.

DAILY NEWS

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1880.

GEO. C JORDAN, Editor and Propr

THE United States is now actually paying a less rate of interest on its public debt than France, the rate in this county being 46 per cent and in France 47 per cent, and the total amount of interest charge $83,700,000 and $213,500,000 respectively. It is true that a large portion of the French debt is in 3 per cent rents, but then, on the other hand, the Franco-German war debt, $1,873,400,000, is in 5 per cents, nearly three times as large an amount as our bonds bearing this rate of interest.

Two eminent scientists, who have thoroughly examined the Edison light, reach the conclusion that "provided the lamp can be made either cheap enough or durable enough," there is no reasonable doubt of the practical success of the light, but that the lamp as it now exists cannot be pronounced practicable, but requires much further experiment before such result can be truly asserted. They add as a salvo to this unpleasant verdict; "That Mr. Edison will finally overcome the difficulty, however, no one who knows him can doubt."

THE rapid growth of the British ironclad fleet is illustrated by some figures just furnished by the First Lord of the Admiralty. On the first of April, 1874, of ironclad ships fit to go into action there were 101,044 tons. These ships were moved by 74,968 indicated horse-power, and they had guns which at one discharge could throw 37,000 pounds of metal. At the present time the total tonage of the ironclad fleet is 272,000, the horse-power 195,000, the weight of metal which can be thrown at one discharge 111,000. In other words the British ironclad fleet has more than doubled in offensive and defensive power within the past six years.

THE accounts of the growing wheat crop in the West are somewhat conflicting. The winter wheat in Iowa and Kansas is said to be unpromising. But in the latter State the proportion of winter sowing is only as one to twenty. In Indiana, however, which yielded 25,000,000 bushels last year, the wheat is reported twenty per cent, better the present season, and the acreage larger than ever known before.

The April reporter of the agricultural department, which is perhaps the most reliable information to be had, places that average condition of Western wheat at ninety, the same as at this time last year, with an increase in acreage of thirteen per cent. There is a fair prospect crop will be even in excess of the immense production of 1879. Breadstuffs are declining steadily, and there is every reason to believe that the staff of life will be cheap.

THE Louisville newspapers have got themselves into difficulty in consequence of a too earnest support of a Sunday law. The Courier-Journal has been a strong supporter of a Sunday law, and has waged a bitter war against the present city administration of Louisville for not enforcing some measure of this kind. The Legislature followed the advice of the Courier-Journal, and a Sunday law was passed by which all kinds of labor and amusement were prohibited. It is now asserted that this law is so wide in its meaning that it prohibits the publication of newspapers on Sunday, as well as other kinds of work. Mayor Baxter, who has been roughly scored by the Louisville papers on this subject, declares that this is his interpretation of the law, and declines to make an exception in favor of those who have been so earnestly denouncing him.

THE Colored Union of the Y. M. C. A of New York, who have been caring for and surporting the negro exoduster from Arkansas, now in Manhattan en route for Liberia, have finally become thoroughly disgusted with their wards, proclaim them humbugs and swindlers and refuse to aid them further. The Unions complained that the Arkansas negroes are greedy and lazy, take everything they can get, but refuse to work for it, and even charge them with stealing. They declare that they do not believe in the Liberia scheme and that those who do will have to take care of the Arkansas darkies. It is generally surmised that these negroes are perfectly content with their present condition—food and lodging without work—and have no idea of going to Liberia. Indeed, even if they were in earnest in their pretended desire to emigrate, there is no vessel to take them to Africa.

An Important Discovery.

A discovery in chemistry has just been published which bids fair to influence agriculture in a manner that may well be described as revolutionary. It must soon compel the attention of farmers and of the manufacturers of artificial manures everywhere. The essential part which ammonia plays in vegetation need not here be dwelt upon, and no one will question the desirability of securing it cheaply and in quantity. The importance of the recent feat of Messrs. Rickman and Thompson, of England, disclosing a plan by which ammonium sulphate can be made and sold with profit at two cents a pound, will not, therefore, be liable to be underestimated. The following account of the process is taken from the Chemical News: "Within the last twenty years the manufacture of ammonia synthetically has been several times attempted, and though in every attempt it is probable that ammonia has been made, it has never been produced on a commercial scale. In all these attempts the process has been to combine the nitrogen and hydrogen directly at a low temperature, and receive the ammonia in solution in water, or by substitution, first forming a cyanide at a higher heat, and then indirectly producing ammonia by the decomposition of the cyanide, the result in both cases being ammonia in solution with water. Rickman and Thompson's procedure is altogether different, they produce ammonium chloride direct, either in dry powder or in solution, and this by the simplest and inexpensive means. Instead of employing retorts, as in all other cases, they merely use a closed brick furnace, the ash-pan of which regulates the supply of air, and they cause the vapor of water to be produced by the waste heat of the furnace itself. With the exception of about a bushel of coke for starting the furnace, the deoxidizing material and only fuel used is coal-dust. The great difficulty in making ammonia from the nascent hydrogen of water and the nitrogen of the air is the restricted limits of temperature between generation and decomposition; it being necessary that carbon, however used, should be at a full red heat to decompose the vapor of water, and at a bright red heat to decompose ammonia. Now, ammonium chloride under the same conditions is simply volatilized and not decomposed. As chloride of sodium or of calcium is decomposed at a full red heat in presence of nascent ammonia, therefore one of these chlorides is mixed with the coal that ammonium chloride may be formed; so that if by chance the heat should be raised to a bright red no loss will be sustained—the ammonium chloride is simply volatilized. By these means a greater range of working temperature is obtained. At the present time, with the consumption of from twenty to twenty-eight pounds of coal dust and salt mixed, from two to three pounds of ammonium chloride is formed.

THE CRESCENT CITY OF FRANCE.

The Many Points of Resemblance Between Bordeaux and New Orleans.

New York tribune.

BORDEAUX, March 18.—The traveled American who takes a run down here from Paris is forcibly reminded, before he has been here forty-eight hours of the change from New York to New Orleans. In fact, topographically as well as geographically, Bordeaux may be called the "Crescent City" of France The rapid and muddy waters of the garonnne sweep past its quays between banks which in form are almost the counterpart of those that give the Louisiana metropolis its name; here is the same river front, call it levee or quay, as you please, lined with shipping and crowded with hogsheads, barrels and bales; opposite the city is another Algiers—in this case known as the Bastide but presenting the same dejected arrap of deserted, tumbledown buildings, dusty roadways, uninyiting warehouses; in short a place that visitors would never think of going near, but for the fact that they have to in order to get to the railroad to take them back to Paris. Nor does the similarity between the two cities confine itself to the place alone; it is equally marked in the climate, and in the faces, habits and character of the people. You leave the French capital shivering and growling in the March blasts—presto!—in nine hours you are in your room at the hotel in Bordeaux, with the windows wide open, the order of fresh violets from a neighboring flower-stand perchance stealing in and the streets below resonant with the shrill cries of women peddling strawberries and green peas. The people you meet all have the Southern Latin type in their faces and garb. You see men with glaring blue or red flannel caps on their heads, and women with fanciful foulards or bandannas. The complexious are swarthy the gait and movement have more of the dolce far niente than one sees on the busy boulevards of Paris, and the ubiquitous Sambo, who flourishes nowhere save 'neath a genial sun, here becomes a frequent subjet of observation. Their French, too, at Bordeaux, has a strong flavor of the Gascon—which even the Parisian finds as difficult to understand as the scion of Boston "culchua" does the broad accent of the Louisiana planter. In short, look at it as you will, Boardeaux is the New Orleans of France, or, let us put it the other way—New Orleans is more properly speaking, the Bordeaux of America.

Cuticura

ave Achieved the most noted success of any Medicines of Modern Times.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter have never doubted the specific properties of Cuticura, Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap, for the speedy, permanent, and economical cure of Humors of the Blood, Skin and Scalp. They are however, astonished at their universal success; for it was to be expected that in the hands of some they could fail solely from spasmodic or ignorant use of them

They are enabled to say without fear of contradiction that no remedies ever achieved in the short space of one year the number of wonderful cures performed by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

SALT RAHUM,

Covering the Body for ten Years, Permanently Cured.

LAW OFFICE OF CHAS. HOUGHTON,
17 Congress Street, Boston, Feb 28, 1878.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen,—I feel it a duty to inform you, and through you all who are interested to know the fact, that a most disagreeable and obstinate case Salt Rheum or Eczema, which has been under my personal observation from its first appearance to the present time,—about ten (10) years,—covering the greater portion of the patient's body, and limbs with its peculiar irritation and itching scab, and to which all the known methods of treating such disease had been applied without benefit, has completely disappeared, leaving a clean and healthy skin, under a few days of profuse application of CUTICURA.

I can and do heartily advise all similarly afflicted to try the remedy which has been so effectual in this case.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. HOUGHTON.

Liver Complaint.

And Dyspepsia Treated by the Resolvent, Gains 5 1-2 pounds on One Bottle.

GENTLEMEN,—I have had Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, with running sores on the side of my neck, for ten years. Doctors did no good. I have been spending for eight years and it did me no good. Everything I ate distressed me. I got reduced from 179 to 132 pounds. At last I tried the RESOLVENT and it helped me right off, and on one bottle I gained five and one-half pounds. It is doing the business, and I am going for it strong. Yours truly,

JOHN H. ROY
414 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., Nov. 15, 1878.

NOTE.—Cuticura is admirable assisted in cases of extreme physical weakness, or when the virus of Scrofula is known to lurk in the system, by the internal use of the Cuticura Resolvent, without doubt the most powerful blood purifier and liver stimulant in the world.

Cuticura Soap is an elegant toilet and medicinal assistant to Cuticura in the treatment of all external ailments. For chapped hands, rough skin and tan, sunburn, and the lesser skin troubles, it is indispensable; as a soap for the toilet, the nursery, or bath it is the most elegant, refreshing, and healing before the public.

These great remedies succeed where all others heretofore in use fail because they possess new and original properties never before successfully combined in medicine.

The Cuticura Remedies are prepared by Weeks & Potter, Chemists and Druggists, Boston, and sold by all Druggists Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes, containing two and one-half times the quantity of small, $1. Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cents per cake; by mail, 30 cents; 3 cakes, 75 cents.

STARVATION IN IRELANND. No fear of that while we offer the present inducement. Agents can make $20 weekly, and it will be their own fault if they do not clear $50.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

Rev. Sylvanus Cobb thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman—We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button."

And during the process of teething, its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
